This course examines the relationship between religion and conflict at the interpersonal, communal and global levels. It will explore religion as a source of conflict as well as a resource for peacemaking. Discussion will include religious belief and identity, inclusive and exclusive tendencies in faith communities, and religious fundamentalism. Students will become familiar with violent themes and imagery in sacred texts as well as the debate over whether religion is inherently conflict producing or merely used to cover or rationalize other sources of conflict.
